

Surreal Life's Andrea Lowell Gets Real on the Cover of Strip Las Vegas

October issue features the blonde bombshell in a pictorial and interview that tells life tales and surreal life secrets

LAS VEGAS – September 5, 2006 – Known to her fans as “The Natural,” blonde bombshell Andrea Lowell who spent what seemed like the entire sixth season of Surreal Life defending herself against Brady Bunch mom Florence Henderson, continues to follow her own path with her appearance as a cover model for Strip Las Vegas magazine’s October issue.

“Andrea is not only a natural beauty, but a real down to earth person – the kind of girl next door that our readers, both men and women, would want to be around whether they were on a date or shopping at the mall,” said Publisher and photographer Scott Philip Santos.

Growing up in Southern CA, Lowell has returned to her roots and calls Long Beach home. As a professional model and actress, Lowell boasts more than 200 credits to her name from runway modeling and acting in commercials to body doubling and hosting several Playboy TV shows.

Lowell has audiences laughing as she engages in unbelievable pranks, Playboy style, on Totally Busted. She has also been featured in 17 Playboy magazines, three calendars and has a blast as the entertainment anchor for Playboy TV’s The Weekend Flash and as a red carpet interviewer on Playboy Does Hollywood. Although she is the first to admit that she is much better at modeling than hosting, any chance Lowell has to be social and have a good time is fair game.

Spending her days as a true beach bunny, Lowell loves to hang out on the sand, listen to music and play Text Twist – a slight addiction for the model who likes to use her brain and proclaims herself as a “grammar freak.”

Lowell, who will be in Las Vegas to host Strip Las Vegas magazine’s October cover party on September 17th at Light, visited the city earlier this year to film Surreal Life Fame Games – a competition where VH1 brought back well-known lifers to battle in various games for a grand prize of $100,000. The Surreal Life spin-off is set to hit airwaves in January.

Joining Lowell in the October issue and at the September 17th cover party is Brittney Skye, a true American Porn Star. Prior to her film career, she used to design children's bedrooms and worked for a retail store. Brittney first hit the adult scene in 2001 and has been featured in more than 290 movies, including many appearances in the Shane’s World series.

Join Lowell, Brittney Skye and all the Strip Las Vegas Hotties on Sunday, September 17th for the Surreal Vegas Life Lingerie Party at Light inside the Bellagio Hotel & Casino. Doors open at 10:30pm.
